About Gallerie

Founded in 2023, Gallerie is mission driven to unlock the untapped potential of the $1.7 trillion art asset class, where over 90% of its value remains inaccessible due to fragmented markets, inconsistent valuation practices, and limited trading infrastructure. While art has consistently outperformed the S&P 500 since 1995, it remains one of the few major asset classes lacking the liquidity and transparency necessary for mainstream investment.

We are building the foundation to change this—the first global trading platform and localized art indices designed to standardize valuations, connect regional markets, and make art trading as data-driven and liquid as equities. By identifying undervalued artistic talent from across the world, we aim to create unprecedented opportunities for both artists and investors, positioning art as a mainstream investment in modern portfolios.

Our mission is not just to participate in the art market but to fundamentally transform it—bringing efficiency, accessibility, and growth to an industry poised for a breakthrough.

About icMercury

icMercury bridges the gap between human curiosity and interstellar exploration. Inspired by the dynamic Mercury planet, our platform brings the cosmos closer to everyone. With innovative PocketQube satellite technology, we make space exploration accessible, eco-friendly, and engaging for all. Our vision is to create a community where space enthusiasts, environmental experts, and everyday stargazers can connect, share, and thrive.

About Interstellar Communication Holdings Inc.

Interstellar Communication Holdings, Inc., a Florida-registered company, is a holding company that connects and consolidates space-related companies, enabling entrepreneurs and investors to tap into the vast potential of the universe. Interstellar Communication Holdings intends to provide an affordable personal satellite service named icMercury for stargazers, using Pocketqube technology and a customized user platform. With this service, users will be able to access their satellite and unlock the potential of the universe. Interstellar Communication is scheduled to launch the first icMercury PocketQube satellite via SpaceX in February 2025.
